

African Access Initiative (AAI) Virtual Training Series for Cancer Clinical Trials

BIO Ventures for Global Health (BVGH) and the Africa-Oxford-Harvard Initiative (AfrOx-H) are proud to announce the upcoming AAI Virtual Training Series for Cancer Clinical Trials. This training program will be conducted virtually via Zoom. Course registration is free and open to all interested participants from Africa, with a particular focus on those who would like to serve as principal investigators on cancer clinical trials. Those who complete the course and all assignments will receive a certificate of completion, issued jointly by BVGH and AfrOx-H. Click below to register for this program.

Dates: February 18 to May 20, 2021

Time: Thursdays at 4:00pm GMT / 5:00pm WAT / 6:00pm CAT / 7:00pm EAT

Length of sessions: 90 minutes

Format: Virtual, via Zoom

Target audience: oncologists, practicing physicians, faculty members, and researchers who would like to serve as a principal investigator on a cancer clinical trial

Register Here!

Topics to be covered:

- Drug development process
- Clinical trials basics
- Phase I, II, III, and IV trials
- Good clinical practice
- Protocol design and statistical methods
- Research ethics
- Patient recruitment
- Cross-sector perspectives and practices
- Budgeting for clinical trials
- Imaging in oncology trials
- Patient communication
- Writing competitive grant applications

Organizers:

